Dear Grad Students and Postdocs,

Note #2 is to pass onto you the update below about winter break surveillance testing. In short, it is changing to a self-serve appointment selection process to help eliminate the waiting lines. The note also clarifies who does not have to worry about coming in for testing. Please see the details below.

On such a lovely sunny afternoon, I wish you a happy Friday and a wonderful weekend. As always, let me know if you have any questions or concerns I can help with.

We write today with a followup to last week's email regarding Winter Break surveillance testing. Most importantly, thank you for sharing the message with your division. We are grateful that more than 2,000 members of our community took part in surveillance testing this week in order to protect their health and keep our campus safe.

We appreciate the feedback from several testers regarding wait times and lines. With this in mind, we have implemented a self-serve appointment selection calendar for the next two weeks of surveillance testing. Appointments can be made using this link and we encourage individuals to schedule on their previously assigned day. However, if you ARE unable to complete a test on your assigned day, you can schedule a test on another day of the week. Every effort will be made to swiftly accommodate those who come for testing but wait times may vary.

Please remember, surveillance testing is recommended and available only for individuals who are living or regularly working on campus during Winter Break. The University Testing Center is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and is closed on University holidays, Dec. 19 through Jan. 5.

Individuals should not come for surveillance testing if they:

- Are in quarantine or isolation
- Have tested positive in the last 90 days
- Are not living or regularly working on campus

Should you have any questions, the COVID Response Unit Hotline, 574-634-HERE (4373) or covidresponseunit@nd.edu, is available Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and closed on University holidays.

Thank you,
Notre Dame COVID Response Unit
