Dear Grad Students and Postdocs,

As the week wraps up, here is note #3 to offer some last updates for 2020:

As you learned recently in a note from CRU, doctoral and masters students are not required to complete pre-matriculation testing for the spring, but it is encouraged and available. I would particularly encourage you to sign up for a test if you are traveling over the holiday break and are returning to campus. More information about availability and the sign-up process is here.

A host of career and professional development events is being offered during Winter Session. If you are interested, you can find out more information here.

I'll close with these best wishes for your break:

As always, let me know if you have any questions or concerns I can help with.
